

Nations, Nationalisms, and the Jewish Bible

The Jewish Bible or “Old Testament” has played a central role in the creation of national identities. This lecture explores how the ancient biblical authors invented the very concept of nationhood or peoplehood, and how this concept diverges on crucial points from the political programs of nationalism.

3rd TU Dortmund University
Lecture in Jewish Studies and Politics

Where? TU Dortmund,
EF 50, 2.405

When? 27 May 2024,
16:15-17:45

Registration:
www.tu-dortmund.de/lectures

Jacob L. Wright is Professor of Hebrew Bible at Emory University
in Atlanta, Georgia.

Most recently, he is the author of the prize-winning Why the Bible Began (Cambridge University Press, 2023). He was awarded with the Gambrinus Fellowship 2023 and serves as a visiting Professor at the Department of Humanities and Theology, TU Dortmund University.

stellalevi Stock-Fotografie-ID:1266498073

